DALHOUSIE UNIVERSITY IS INTERNATIONALLY KNOWN as one of North America's most welcoming universities. Founded in 1818, Dalhousie is among Canada's oldest universities, attracting more than 19,000 students, including 4,000 international students from more than 120 countries around the world. Located on Canada's East Coast, the university blends world-class academic programs with breakthrough thinking and leading-edge research.

Our membership in the U15 Group of Canadian Research Universities distinguishes us as one of Canada's leading research-intensive universities. Dalhousie conducts more than $168 million in funded research annually, spreading new knowledge throughout the community, the country and the globe. Groundbreaking work in fields such as sustainable ocean; healthy people, healthy communities and healthy populations; clean tech, energy and the environment; culture, society and community development; and food security, means our researchers are focused on solving complex global issues to create a better, more sustainable future for all of us.

Dalhousie's graduate programs are diverse and unique, each designed to enhance the professional and personal development of its students while producing global citizens equipped to handle the challenges of the future. We offer over 95 master programs and 45 doctoral programs.

We're located in one of Canada's fastest-growing cities that's home to innovative tech and entrepreneurial communities, as well as thriving financial and ocean sectors. Halifax has everything you'd expect from a big city within a safe and close-knit community. Our Agricultural Campus is the only campus in Canada with an on-site teaching farm and is located an hour's drive away in Truro.

Whether it's our passion for teaching and learning, our commitment to the highest levels of research, or our dedication to serving local, national and international needs, the Dalhousie community is united in our quest to make a lasting impact on our world.
